

Efficient Use of Resources

WaterSense Partners Joining Together

Water saved from efficiency efforts can be equal to locating new sources of water. Water utilities working to promote water efficiency in South Carolina came together with DHEC and DNR for a WaterSense partner meeting in January. WaterSense is an EPA partner program that works to promote water efficient products, programs and practices. At the meeting, utilities shared success stories from within their part of the state. Topics of discussion included smart irrigation, efficient home fixtures, and water reclamation. The partners also shared ideas for how DHEC could provide support for their outreach efforts. As an on-going partnership, the group will continue to meet, share information, and move water efficiency into the every day activities of South Carolinians.
